AGAINST THE FEDERATION.

Carpenters and Hod Carriers
Take a Stand to Get Work.

The Sunday Labor Meeting and What Came of It—Strike on Three Jobs.

There is more food for thought and talk in labor circles to-day, the contest having narrowed down to something of an organized fight against the American Federation.

There has been trouble brewing ever since the strike on the High School building, and Sunday it culminated in a general meeting of all men in the Federation, which was addressed by Mr. Blackmore, of St. Louis, and local representatives. At that meeting it was resolved that all local union men in the Federation should quit work on the Library Block because the printing and painting is done by non-union factory men in the employ of Roberts & Greene, on the High School building because the plaster contract is let to Mr. Perry, who employs non-union labor, and on the Dr. Weyl flats because Krummer, a non-union plasterer, has the plastering job.

This morning the walking delegates were at the different jobs and orders were given to carpenters and hod carriers to quit work. Several carpenters at the Library Block walked out, and immediately four of the number were paid off. They took their tools away with them. One carpenter begged to come back. He told him that none of the men who quit would be taken back. The hod carriers left to a man, and as the bricklayers, who are not in the Federation, continued to work with no helpers, Mr. Greene, one of the owners of the building, jerked off his coat and went to work himself as a hod-carrier, wheeling brick to the elevator and serving mortar. He didn't keep it up very long. In a short time extra men were secured and Mr. Greene retired to run the horse elevator, while the men wheeled brick and mortar to the platform.

There was no work done to-day at the High School building, but it was expected that operations would be resumed this afternoon or to-morrow morning. Hod-carriers are needed. They say they will be ready to-morrow.

Work is still in progress at the Weyl flats but the force is short-handed.

WITH FEELING.

When the hod-carriers were ordered out this morning a number of the men, who say they have become tired of the Federation power, took steps at once to desert that organization and plan for the formation of an independent or International Union. It was no trouble to obtain signatures from among the hod-carriers. Fifteen were added to the list by 10 o'clock, and this afternoon the number had been greatly increased. One hod-carrier said: "I am sick of the whole business. I have bills to meet, home rent to pay, and don't know what I will do next winter if this thing keeps up. I want to get into a local union and out of the Federation. The way it is now the printers or cigarmakers have the power to order the hod-carriers out. What have we to do with them? All along I have been against the Federation plan. Let each union take care of its own trouble, and then we can get along and building will not be paralyzed."

It is expected there will be plenty of anti-Federation hod-carriers ready to go to work to-morrow morning. Roberts & Greene were told at 11 a. m. that possibly they could have all the men they wanted this afternoon; at any rate not later than to-morrow.

Contractor Rosen says the carpenters have no fight against Roberts & Greene. Rosen said: "The fight is dead against me in person, and it is aggravated by Rixie, the president of the Carpenters' Union, because I will not give him work. I don't want to make work for him and he is trying to make me trouble. I am a Union man but I am not in favor of the Federation plan of running things. I have none but union men, and I have all the carpenters I want. They are standing by me and I will complete this job and all others I have on hand."

At about one o'clock, just before time was called to go to work, a sharp dismissal arose in one of the rooms in Library Block, which quickly drew Rosen and Greene to the scene. It was found that Henry Henshaw, who said he was an officer of the Federation, had had a dispute with I. D. Stine, the Rosen draughtsman. When it was learned what Stine had said, Rosen at once sustained him in his position, adding that he was a union man, but would not have anything further to do with the Federation. Henshaw told Rosen to go along with his plans, that he (Stine) was not a member of the Federation, but he had a short colloquy with Henshaw which ended in no satisfaction to Greene, and in a few moments Henshaw walked out. On the walk in front of the block were representatives of the Federation who were spotting the men at work, with the avowed purpose of reporting them at the union meeting to be held to-night.

His men are standing on the street corners to-day, clapping on the labor side.

One union carpenter said he didn't want to do any fighting against the union. In '95 he said he had stood out and it had cost him $100 a month. Another man said he had been working for a firm, but now he was working for himself—going about looking for work.

Dan Reame is one of the union carpenters who stands by Rosen on the Library Block. He delivered a pointed talk this morning, declaring that nobody had a kick against Rosen, who he said, was doing the square thing. Rosen had treated him like a man, and Reame declared that he would remain at work.

The outcome of the action of some of the carpenters and the desertion of the hod-carriers from the Federation will be watched with interest.

Carpenters' Union.

A called meeting of all members of the Carpenters and Joiners' Union will be held to-night in the grand jury room. All members are requested by Mr. Rixie to be present, as business of importance will be considered.

Union Printers and the Candidates.
Bloomington, Ill., June 26.—At a meeting of the Typographical Union of this city held to-day a series of resolutions were introduced concerning White-law Reid for his course relative to the printers' union. The resolutions were warmly discussed, the Democratic typographical union and the Republican printers opposing the scheme. The resolutions were adopted by a strict party vote. Another resolution was introduced to appoint a committee of two Republicans and two Democrats and one Prohibitionist to investigate the record of Adlai E. Stevenson relative to union labor. The Democratic printers, being in the majority, voted in favor of the resolution. Mr. Stevenson is President of the McLean County Coal company, which has always been conducted on the non-union principle, and which has been particularly hostile to union organizations.

The Sunday Question.

The Sunday observance question was discussed at several of our churches yesterday, and at once on this account becomes a question of some prominence. Various and discordant views have in every age been held regarding Sunday observance. Those who believe there is a God must admit that his revealed will, including his laws, were given for the benefit of his creature man, to promote good government, good society, for the comfort, security and happiness of all the people.

When God promulgated the decalogue He announced to mankind the same principle reiterated in the Declaration of Independence, the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, or, the equality of all men in birth and responsibility. The decalogue has three distinct divisions: The three commandments that relate to God and His worship; the one commandment relating to the observance of the Sabbath; and the six commandments relating to the protection of the individual in society.

The first division embraces the government of the church, the last division embraces the government of the state, and the injunction to keep the Sabbath is the one that touches or unites both church and state.

Under the old Mosaic law, when church and state were united, Sabbath observance was enforced by law, just as the Hebrew citizen was restrained from theft, false swearing or murder, but when the Christian dispensation was introduced an entirely new idea of securing happiness to the people was declared. While the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man was recognized, perhaps in a broader sense than ever before, Christ declared when he said, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's," a separation between church and state. It was declared also to be a dispensation wherein God's laws were written upon the hearts of men, rather than upon statute books; a dispensation when men should be controlled by conscience, rather than law; a dispensation when men should accept religion by their own free will, and not by coercion of law; a dispensation when men would elect to be good citizens of the state by free consent, rather than fear of the law, principles which have been fully recognized and adopted by our own government in the Declaration of Independence.

These principles make good citizens. Laws only protect good citizens. In the enjoyment of life, from the enjoyment of those who disregard these principles. Inasmuch, then, as men cannot be made either Christians or good citizens by law, in the discussion of the Sunday observance question, these facts should be borne in mind.

While it is true that we have Sunday laws on the statute books, it will be noticed that these laws in no case attempt to force men to observe the Sabbath, but are made to protect the home and religious societies from disturbance by those who are not disposed to keep the Sabbath by their own free consent, or as a matter of conscience. A man can no more be compelled by law to "remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy" than he can be compelled by law to accept the religion of Jesus Christ or be a good citizen and a loyal subject of this government. These things can only be done by the free consent of the individual.

But if God requires the observance of the Sabbath for the good of man, if the observance of one day in the week is essential to the good order of society, it must follow that a failure to keep the day is as dangerous to the perpetuity of the happiness of a people as to disregard any other injunction of the decalogue. "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath" is flexible enough in it to open the way for any associations individual to do those things, and only those things, that are necessary to be done on that day.

While it follows from these facts that the best index to the morality of a nation is the degree in which the people observe the Sabbath, it must be borne in mind that the only way to bring a people up to the observance of the Sabbath is to impress upon them the necessity and importance, from every point of view, of its observance, and also that religious organizations and special religiousists and so-called reform organizations may, and should, violate the sanctity of the Sabbath to the best of good society, as we do have secret societies and kindred organizations, by public demonstrations on that day.

Catholics Excommunicated.
PEORIA, Ill., June 26.—The Knights of St. Edward, a Catholic society of over a hundred members have been excommunicated by the bishop for disobeying his orders. They gave an excursion last Sunday and sold beer on the boat. At their next meeting they were deprived of their charter. The society has ceased to exist. EVERYBODY KNOWS

That the season has been backward and that consequently sales in all lines in the way of seasonable merchandise have been backward. This is only another way of saying that times in the shoe trade have been dull. We may have dull times but we will not have sales missing at our house. We may be unable to reap the profits which are the legitimate expectation of every standard shoe house in good times, but we will sell. That is the cardinal principle of our business. We may be disappointed as to profits, but we must and will sell more every year than we did the year preceding. We know that we have advantages over all competitors in the matter of getting goods, know that we can own them cheaper, that we can sell them for the same price that the ordinary retailer buys them for and yet make a small margin. We are not asking for anything more now. Better come in and buy. We have the goods and the prices to make the sales if you can be induced to buy anything in shoes.
